Tips for detail shots. Have all the details you in one place, a shoebox works great for smaller objects. I typically bring a few neutral colored ring boxes, if you want a color to match your wedding theme, you can find many options on Etsy and even Amazon. Text me a photo of your invite suite so I can have an idea of a layout ahead of time. Ask your florist to set aside a few flowers for your details. Include your wedding favor in your detail box.

There is nothing quite magical as walking into a candle lit ballroom. The dim lights from the chandeliers create a romantic and breathtaking atmosphere. We love a challenge of creating stunning images when no natural light is available.

Our brides often comment just how much they love their reception images. Yuliya and her team bring lights to set up on the corners of your dance floor, they are quite compact and are easily moved around the room to capture the perfect shot. This approach to ballroom photography is unique in that the ambient light in your ballroom is also preserved in the photos.

Fashion lover, coffee and a J.Crew somewhat addict. I love all things weddings and feel so blessed to photograph timeless weddings for the last ten years. In my childhood I had white winters, magical fall foliage, and summers on the Black Sea, but not much else.

That one time I fell in love. Hard. My college roommate from Switzerland, dragged me to an early morning flight to her favorite city.

Standing in a plaza looking up at the Domo of Firenze on a warm spring afternoon, surrounded by beautiful sounds of Ciao bella, grazie and arrivederci, my heart skipped a beat and I've been only traveling to Italy for the last few years.

Matera is my second home now and this photo is of me living my Italian dream on the rooftops of this ancient monochrome city.

Your reception site is one of the most picturesque parts of your wedding. If you'd like a few portraits in your reception location, here are our tips to make it happen. Talk to your planner to include this in the timeline. I suggest to allocate around ten minutes for your portraits. Get ready to practice your first dance, there is nothing more romantic than a few slow dancing photos with your reception decor as the backdrop.
